922-24-26-28 7th St. "THE DEPENDABLE STORE."

Redoubling our Efforts for Friday!

It is of vital importance that we clear the counters of every vestige of remnants—every odd lot and every broken line. Inventory must find the winter stocks at the smallest possible minimum—and we apply the reduction knife with a determination that stops at nothing short of a complete clearance. We have made a summary sacrifice in every line that demands a weeding out. Prices have been lowered to a point seldom reached before for equal qualities. It is a Friday bargain event of unusual importance—that must attract the attendance of every shrewd buyer who appreciates this store's methods and enterprise.

A CONTINENTAL BUILDING

Plans of the D. A. R. to Erect a Memorial Hall in This City.

The Proposition Laid Before the Senate—In Asking the Government for a Site Formerly Appropriated for Similar Purposes Are Mentioned. Favorable Consideration Urged.

Mr. Frye of Maine has laid before the Senate a statement submitted to the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds by the Daughters of the American Revolution asking for land on which to establish at Washington a Continental Hall.

This statement recites that the Continental or Memorial Hall proposed by the Daughters of the American Revolution in honor of the statesmen, soldiers, sailors, and patriots, men and women, of the American Revolution and for the preservation of the relics of war, peace, domestic life and industry associated with the period of the conflict for American Independence, will be in architectural design, durability, and cost, worthy of the commemoration proposed and of the seat of Government of the Republic of the United States of America, founded by their genius, valor, and sacrifices.

Under authority of the first Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution a committee on the Memorial Hall was organized, and the committee, composed of the late Mrs. Caroline Scott Harrison, of Indiana, the first President General of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The first discussion of the subject was had at a conference of national officers and State and chapter regents, Daughters of the American Revolution, October 6 and 7, 1891, at Washington, D. C., over which Mrs. Harrison presided.

On December 14, 1891, a resolution was adopted proposing a home for the society and creating a permanent building fund. The first continental congress, Daughters of the American Revolution, February 22-24, 1892, organized a committee "to formulate a plan for a memorial building to be erected by the national society." Since these initial steps the subject of a memorial or continental hall has been constantly before the front and has at the succeeding continental congresses been endorsed and encouraged. There are, it is said, numerous precedents for the grant of a site for memorial purposes on one of the public reservations, as proposed by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Daughters call the attention of the committee to the motto of the plan of the city of Washington, prepared and described in 1791 by Marshall, and which is, "To be a city of the future, and to be a memorial to the past." The French engineer of distinguished continental service. The idea of Major L'Enfant was to design a federal city, a grand idea of national importance, and to be a memorial to the past.

The patriotic adornment of fifteen squares, representing States of the Union in 1792, the Daughters set forth, "can be commemorated in a single structure, and in a limited time by the erection of some appropriate statue or other mark to the memory of the heroes of the Revolution."

"To inspire the young and design to 'teach a grand idea of national importance, and to be a memorial to the past.'
